Engage with Ugandan Jewish community (the Abayudaya), witness breathtaking natural wonders, do a game drive and river boat ride to see some amazing wildlife and there's an optional add-on to encounter mountain gorillas up close. We'll be staying in the eastern part of Uganda, where you'll have a real connection with our partner communities. You'll visit Global Village Connect projects, schools and synagogues. You'll hike beautiful Sipi Falls, and you'll spend Shabbat with the Abayudaya community.

You can add on a 3-day gorilla trek in Bwindi Impenetrable National Forest. Enjoy the beautiful surroundings and an average summertime temperature of 78 degrees Fahrenheit.

About The Abayudaya

The Abayudaya (the name means “people of Judah” in Luganda). Most of the community keep kosher, celebrate Jewish holidays, and welcome people from around the world to come and pray.

In 1919, people began converting to Judaism after the founder, the African chieftain and military leader Semei Kakungulu, read the Torah and decided to adopt Jewish customs and laws. Kakungulu circumcised his sons and himself, and his community in Eastern Uganda began to practice Judaism. By the 1960s, the Abayudaya had around 1,500 followers, but they suffered intense religious persecution under dictator Idi Amin’s regime throughout the 1970s. Synagogues were destroyed, the government prohibited Jewish observance, and many Abayudaya felt forced to convert to Christianity or Islam. By the time Idi Amin left power, there were about 300 Jews left in the community. But the younger generation rebuilt the community and it continues to grow.

Today, there are over 2600 Jews spread out across 14 villages with 16 synagogues.
